

Jack and Jill, 1928

Jack Minot and Jill Peco were inseparable companions who shared all sorts of good times together until one fateful day when, as they were coasting down a steep, snowy slope, their sled overturned and both were seriously injured. Jack soon recovered from his injuries but it was almost a year before Jill was strong and well enough to romp with her friends again. This is the story of what happened to Jack and Jill and their lively friends in that year that Jill was confined to bed. For surprisingly enough, although she could not personally join all their adventures, Jill's advice and good cheer enabled her to share and even plan many of the group's good times.
