

Earthdream: The Marriage of Reason and Intuition

Scientific and intuitive worldviews have been perceived as incompatible. The author argues that herein lies the root of our current predicament - we live in a world of spiritual impoverishment and material waste. However, a growing number of scientists are coming to realize the connectedness of reason and intuition - religious leaders are becoming increasingly involved with matters of the earth. In Earthdream, the author presents an analysis of the situation in which we are trapped. He claims the way out of our impasse is through the marriage of reason and intuition because it is only when we realize that reason complements intuition, and that we need them both, that we will be able to heal the wounds of our ailing planet.
