

CORE: A Poetry Collection

CORE is a poetry collection with themes of suicide, loss and grief, but also of courage, joy and deeply passionate love. It is a journey of healing and survival that has taken the author around the world and through his own heart and spirit. It is the revealing of darkness and light, of beauty and hideousness, and a reliance on the strength of ones ancestors and their beliefs to inspire hope and perseverance. Readers appreciative of contemporary poetry written by a Native American poet who has traveled the world, and the broad spectrum of life may be interested in the forty plus poems written in a variety of styles and meters. Delivered from a unique perspective but with themes and emotions everyone may have experienced, sometimes the poetry is dark and powerful, and at others whimsically gentle. Whether describing survivors of the Holocaust and the labor camp gulags of Soviet Russia, whether the heartbreaking struggles of beggar children on streets across Europe or the delicate intimacies of love, Red Haircrow's work has often been described as haunting and unforgettable.
