

Environmental Classics

For any reader interested in American history, this collection from the founding fathers of the American environmental movement is a must. Including works by Ralph Waldo Emerson, Henry David Thoreau, John Muir, and John Burroughs, readers get a complete picture of the different elements that have shaped a crucial part of American culture. Moreover, the literary style of these writers is unparalleled their descriptions of Americas stunning landscapes have inspired millions, and their discussions on how to work against the constraints of a materialistic culture to find a simpler life are still relevant today. This collection includes descriptions of each author and each work, along with photos, illustrations, and linked tables of contents. The works included are: Henry David Thoreau 1. Walden 2. On the Duty of Civil Disobedience Ralph Waldo Emerson 3. Nature 4. The American Intellectual 5. Self-Reliance John Muir 6. My First Summer in the Sierra 7. Travels in Alaska John Burroughs 8. Under the Apple Tree
