A RETURN TO THE WORLD OF Z 2134 AND ONE OTHER SHORT STORY IN THIS DOUBLE FEATURE From #1 horror and sci-fi authors of the Yesterdays Gone series and Z 2134, Sean Platt and David Wright, comes two short stories including a return to the world of Z 2134 in Rites of Passage, and a new short horror story called The Room. RITES OF PASSAGE (FROM THE WORLD OF Z 2134) In the year 2138, humans live behind walled Cities under strict government control. For those who refuse the confines of tyranny, there is The Barrens, a harsh land where everything is out to kill you from the wildlife to zombies to other humans. A lucky few manage to find some semblance of a normal life living within secret villages, ignored by the government and as yet undiscovered by bandits. But living in such villages requires you to always be prepared for anything. Following the death of her father, 15-year-old Scout knows that it is on her to ensure that her 10-year-old brother, Kip, has what it takes to survive in the cruel Barrens. But Kip is a kind soul, unable to even hunt an animal for survival. So she takes him out to the woods to toughen him up. But what they find will not only test her brother, but also Scouts resolve. Will she be forced to give up her humanity in order to protect her family? Z: Rites of Passage is a standalone short story taking place independent of the Z 2134 trilogy with new characters and locations. THE ROOM There is a room in Jimmy Shires house that is almost locked. A room that babysitter, Taylor has always wondered about. Why does Jimmy lock the door? What does he keep in there that could be so secret? Tonight Jimmy forgot to lock the door. And Taylor is going to wish she never looked inside.
